A Correction

A gentleman writing from Wien says that our account of the fining of Ed Paasig, etc. was wrong. It was. Mr. Paasig was fined $10 and costs for common assault and the costs ran the bill up to $119.30.

A traction engine broke the bridge across the big slough at the north west corner of the Meyer farm south of the Carskaddon and sons farm into kindling wood. The separator was on one side of the slough and the engine stuck in the mud when heard from Wednesday. Many bridges and culverts have been ruined or badly damaged this year by threshing outfits and it is high time that the authorities get busy before everything is wrecked by reckless traction engine owners.

Dr. J. T. Dewey returned from the state fair Wednesday. He didn't get closer than the fifth with his yellow corn exhibit because he pulled it too early. Grundy County yellow corn was first and the same 100 ears captured the sweepstake premium. A Bunceton exhibit was awarded premium on his 100 ears of white corn. Doc says gasoline is supreme at the fair as everywhere else. He refused to attend the auction sale of Maxwell cars because they charged an admission of 50 cents and he didn't want a Maxwell anyway. The absence of any exhibit of farm machinery except traction gang plow outfits was noted.
